

Patricia Urquiola interpreta la felicità della vita all'aria aperta con una collezione dal design giocoso, con forme tondeggianti e sinuose, che si distingue per l'approccio sensibile all'ambiente impiegando materiali innovativi e sostenibili, completamente Made in Italy, elaborati grazie alla ricerca di Cassina LAB, la collaborazione tra il Centro di Ricerche e Sviluppo di Cassina e Poli.design del Politecnico di Milano.

Il divano a due posti e i tre moduli combinabili, per creare composizioni accoglienti, hanno una struttura in acciaio Inox AISI 304 verniciato su cui poggiano pannelli realizzati in RFM®, una vetroresina riciclata rifinita a mano e 100% riciclabile.

Lo schienale è caratterizzato dall'intreccio realizzato artigianalmente in corda di polipropilene e nylon, mentre i due cuscini dello schienale e quello della seduta sono imbottiti con ovatta in fibra riciclata al 100% ottenuta da PET.

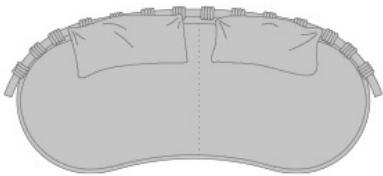

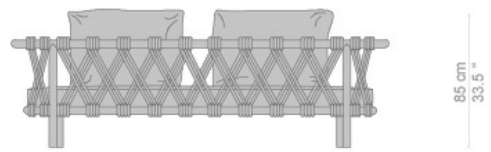

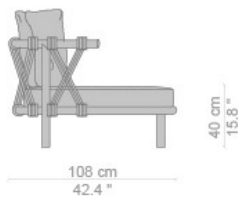

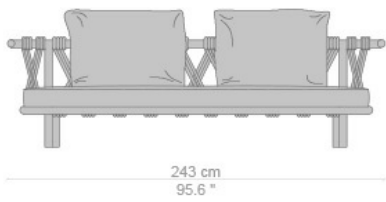

Sono opzionali le frange dei cuscini nella stessa tonalità della corda.
